

Cellists' Corner

Brief Career Details of Important Cellists

prepared by David Johnstone from public information

*Any image linked here is claimed to be used under fair use as:
the photo or image is only being used solely for informational purposes*

If any copyright holder is not agreed such an image could be removed at short notice

COLIN HAMPTON

By Celloheaven

Colin Hampton was born on June 6th, 1911. His father was an organist, woodworker and musical director. Colin spent much of his childhood in convents outside of London, due to the dangers of WWI. He took up the cello at the age of 12, and made rapid progress. He studied with Herbert Walenn at the London Violoncello School, and then with W. H. Squire at the Royal Academy of Music.

He quickly became deeply in love with chamber music, and found himself in the Griller Quartet, which became relatively well-known in the music world of the mid-twentieth century. In 1947 the Griller Quartet took up residency at the Berkely campus of the University of California.

*The Griller Quartet with Hephzibah Menuhin (1953), Sidney Griller, Philip Burton.
Crediting the Chamber Music New Zealand archives*

Hampton was a co-founder of the California Cello Club, and an arranger of dozens of pieces for various sizes of cello ensembles. He died in 1996 at the age of 85.

His autobiography: A Cellist's Life, was published in 2000 by String Letter Publishing, and has been reviewed at the Cello Heaven website.

The Following is an excerpt from Tim Janof's interview with cellist Bonnie Hampton:

"TJ: You mentioned that you studied with Colin Hampton, who is also known for his cello compositions. What was it like studying with him?"

"BH: Colin was very much a quartet cellist, and he saw "quartet cellist" as his role in life, so to speak. He always referred to himself as the bass of the quartet. He was a wonderful cellist and people were constantly asking him to play other things, but he wouldn't. He was from an older school of quartet players where, when one was labeled as a quartet musician, that's all one did. Today, everyone diversifies much more, and, frankly, I think it's probably more healthy.

"One of the things that was so strong with him was how he was able to delve beneath the surface of someone's playing and look right into the character of the music. He had no use for the idea of mere instrumental playing, or virtuoso playing per se. He admired and loved virtuoso playing, of course, but he said, unless one really loves music, there's no point in playing the instrument."

Please do see original works for many different instruments and groupings (virtually all of the orchestral instruments, plus keyboard, accordion, txistu etc.). There are countless transcriptions of all kinds for cellists, and for cello with other instruments on the Johnstone-Music web page. General music and cello-based articles and biographies abound, plus directories of famous historical cellists, and many other historical and present-day items of interest...

DOWNLOADS - Many downloads on Johnstone-Music are now available, for those that are interested, free or at an almost symbolic payment, which is to help cover the costs of this web site. Some scores/parts are presented in musical edition programmes but generally they are found here in a most “clear” hand-written manuscript copy.

USE OF MATERIAL - As far as Johnstone-Music is concerned you are welcome to publicly perform or record any work or piece found in the web; you SHOULD, however, make a written mention of the name of the composer and the arranger on any printed information (hand programmes, disc covers etc.).

FREE PUBLICITY - If you care to inform us of any public performance (no matter how formal or informal the event is), recording or other uses of the original music or arrangements of David Johnstone or of other colleagues in this web, we are happy to give your free publicity on the Johnstone-Music web if you write in advance with any information.